VOLUNTEERS

Volunteer leaders are crucial for the success of a children's ministry. But many have been "off" of serving and may need a jumpstart to get them thinking about ministry again. Some may have seen family struggles as a result of COVID-19 and will be prime recipients for additional pastoral care. Perhaps you are dreaming of a new ministry or how you can train leaders, perhaps the questions below will help you think through different areas related to volunteers.

Questions

1. How can you prepare your volunteers for your first Sunday together?
2. How has COVID-19 impacted your leaders in a way that may mean more additional care?
3. In what new ways are you planning to utilize volunteers in your weekly services?
4. What are some ways you can show your volunteers how much you appreciate them as we gather again?
5. How can you engage your volunteers to extend your connection with kids and their families?

Ideas

Asking the right questions is only part of the process. It then becomes necessary to generate possible solutions to move forward in God's plan and timing.

Resources

Nothing is more frustrating than struggling to create something from the ground up not knowing there was a solution ready to go which made the job easier. The resources section may not have all of the solutions you are looking for, but perhaps there is enough there to save you some time and effort in creating the change you are looking for.
